The Headmaster's Office

3,200 Students and a State of the Art High School

Headmaster William Samaras

With renovations 95% complete, Headmaster Samaras could not sit back for a rest. Facing the turn of the century, he could only look forward to new challenges and even more changes in population, academic requirements and a very active student body.

Lowell High Headmaster
William Samaras

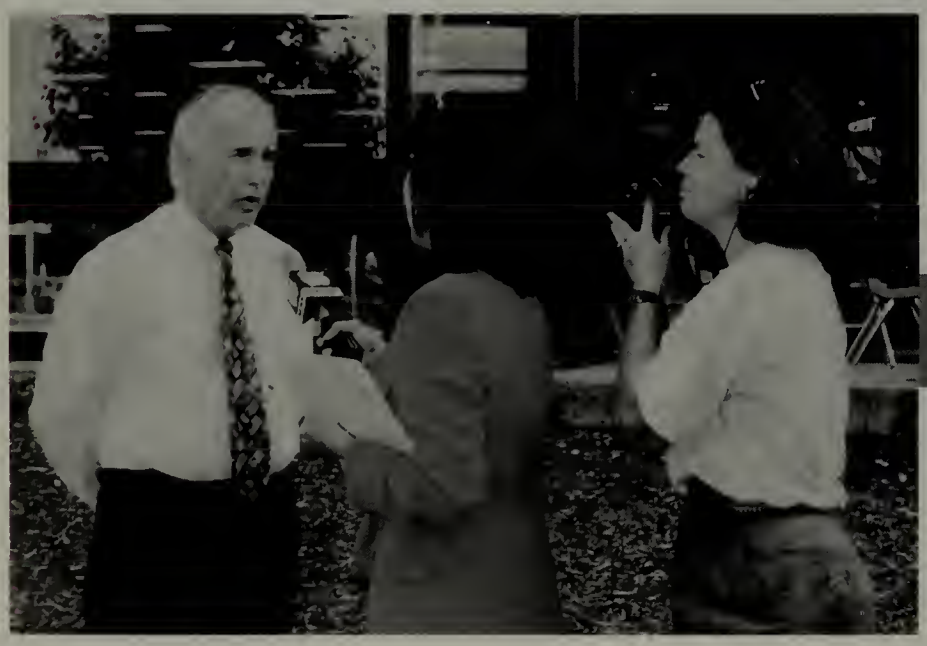

You might find him at a Lowell High athletic event, a National Honor Society Induction ceremony, a building dedication, in an advisory committee meeting with students, celebrating LHS School Nurse's Day, attending a dance, interviewing with the media, or savoring a Boottmill... anywhere and everywhere Lowell High School life took him. We kept him busy. It was good for him.

"The effects of $40 million in renovations included a second bridge, a refurbished theatre and cafeteria, classrooms and library media center, as well as new lockers for everyone. The thought of sharing a four by thirty-six inch locker with a friend seemed a distant memory, like Freshman year.....

Change and Challenge at LHS

"Unfinished Business" Wrapped Up

"There will be no school in Lowell today due to "unfinished business," or so one would call it. That was the message broadcast over the radio on the morning of August 27, 1997. For seniors, it meant a couple of extra days off and an extended summer vacation. It meant two more days of relaxation while construction workers put in double time in order to complete what they could of the "unfinished business."

Little did students know what would greet them on that Friday before Labor Day weekend; a cafeteria too clean and bright to recognize, moldy orange carpet removed, brand new lockers that we no longer had to share, the rush of clueless freshmen, new classrooms, a library media center, and bells that no longer deserved the title, since they were really "tones."

Talk about change! There was a newness everywhere; the definite chaos of any first day of school, I.D. pictures, and the annoying repetition of hearing how we shouldn't miss more than twelve days of school...

The Class of 1998 was at the beginning of their end at LHS. Surrounded by the challenges of dealing with a new and almost fully improved high school, seniors watched happily and almost with a hint of envy as the confused freshmen were beginning a journey that they had come to wrap up in the months ahead. Still to come would be the football games, the excitement and craziness of Spirit Week, pep rallies, Arthur's, the Harvest, the Prom, and graduation.

Seniors would be determined, despite the construction and the changes, to make the 1997-98 school year one that no one would forget. The challenges ranged from finding new classrooms, to juggling sports and academics, and eventually to finding a college or simply a life choice.

What the class may not have known on that first day of school however, was just how precious that time left at Lowell High School would be.

George D. Kouloheras
Educational Wing and Library Media Center

George D. Kouloheras

Buildings Dedicated October 26, 1997

George D. Kouloheras was born on January 26, 1913 in the Acre section of Lowell, the first child of immigrant parents, Demetrios and Demetra Kouloheras. As a first generation American of Greek descent, he is proud of his heritage as a descendent of Nikitaras, a hero of the 1825 struggle for Greek independence.

Mr. Kouloheras attended the Greek parochial school, the Bartlett School, and Lowell High School where he was Regimental Captain Quartermaster of the Boy Officers Regiment. Mr. Kouloheras attended Northeastern University Engineering School. Unable to find employment as an engineer during the Depression, he entered the restaurant business prior to securing a position as an engineering analyst of experimental mechanics at the Thomson Laboratory of General Electric where he worked primarily on the development of jet engines for forty years until his retirement.

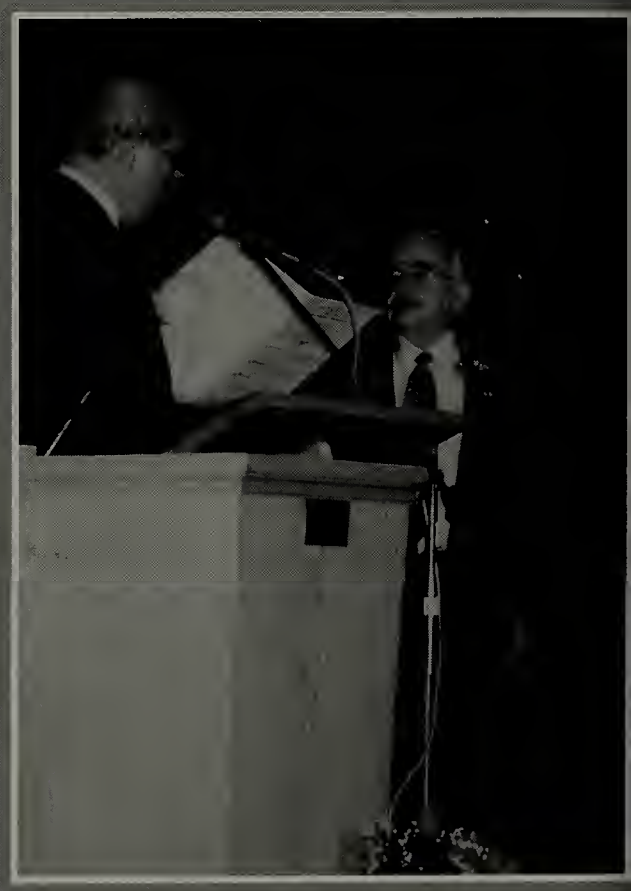

Married to Stella Athanas, Mr. and Mrs. Kouloheras raised five children, all of whom attended the Bartlett School, Lowell High School, and college. As PTA President of the Bartlett School, he fought for the rebuilding of the Bartlett after it was destroyed by fire. This began his 50 year involvement with public education in Lowell, 35 years of which have been as an elected School Committeeman on either the Lowell School Committee, the Greater Lowell Regional School Committee, or both simultaneously.

Mr. Kouloheras' contributions are innumerable, but the five accomplishments of which he is most proud include...the creation of the Greater Lowell Regional Vocational High School...his fight against gender bias and his support of female athletics, coed cafeterias, and honors by grade point, not equal distribution among sexes...the development of the McDonough City and Arts Magnet Schools...his suppport of the city-wide new schools building programs form the 1960's through the current $170 million dollar expansion...his staunch support of the Lowell Public Schools and his undying faith in its ability to address the educational needs of all the children of Lowell.

In 1994, the Massachusetts Association of School Commitees awarded George D. Kouloheras Life Membership in its organization. This year the Hellenic American School presented Mr. Kouloheras with its Golden Lamp Award for his outstanding achievements. In February, Commissioner of Education Robert Antonucci, presented a Certificate of Recognition for his years of committed service and his guiding influence in the Lowell school system.

Mr. Kouloheras has felt blessed to receive this recognition. He was truly humbled however, when his peers voted in 1996 to name the new Lowell High School Library Media Center and Academic Wing in his honor.

The Wonder Years

We'd say we were never that little, never that goofy, but the proof is in the print! Freshmen Orientation Day introduced us to Lowell High School, its clubs, athletics and activities. The tour was almost overwhelming. Dazzled by the very size of the place, we were sure we'd get stuffed into a locker by some senior. Sure we believed there was a 6th floor...why shouldn't we? In no time at all, though, we were the seniors misdirecting the unsuspecting!

Our Very First Days at LHS

We could never imagine ourselves as freshmen, but here's the proof!

"I remember being very scared. I came from a tiny little middle school to a huge two-building high school. So many things ran through my head. Would any of my friends be in my classes? Would my teachers be mean? Would I ever find my classes? It started out bad, but ended up great!" Cindy Berrios '98

" Freshman year consisted of hallways filled with impressionable young kids. l remember a group of friends that slowly grew apart over the years, sorting through boyfriends like a load of dirty laundry."....Julie Courchene '98

"During my freshman year, my memories are vague. I do remember thinking how large and complex the school seemed. l especially loved the feeling of freedom that I had, though. l enjoyed the fact that I could walk around the school undisturbed. It was easily the most exciting year of high school. Everything seemed new and you cared about stuff." Phil Conners '98

"Thank God for friends. My best friend freshman year was a senior. She gave me a tour of LHS so I wasn't so confused on the first day. The school seemed so big and intimidating and upperclassmen were in a totally different world. It's funny how things change. LHS became as familiar as my own house. The thought of moving out already fills me with apprehension. I suppose being a freshman in college will be interesting." ...Diliana DeJesus '99

"I remember being a freshman like it was yesterday. The years have passed so quickly. We were always the little kids who had to be careful we didn't do anything stupid in front of the upperclassmen. We though the punishment would be brutal. As we grew, the fear disappeared."

...Billie Jo Rousseau '98

"Freshman year stunk. I was such a little kid and nobody knew me. I had no friends. I don't remember what classes I even took back then. I remember how big everyone seemed to me as I walked down the hall. I felt like a little pipsqueak."

...Eamonn Sullivan '98

"Ah, to be a freshman again! New faces, scholarships far from your mind and plenty of parties. But the thought of three more years of school hanging over your head proved frightful. Day by day we learned a little more of the school and how things were run. Once you realized it, you just sat back and enjoyed the ride."...Brian Monaghan '98

" Going into freshman year I told myself I wouldn't believe any of the stories people told me about Lowell High. I had heard that there were fights every day, and that seniors beat up freshmen. In reality, it wasn't that big a deal coming here. It was confusing at first, but that was the worst of it and everyone adjusted really quickly." ... Ben Chaput '98

"I made new friends and began some of the best friendships which still exist today. Students we knew from junior high became people that you only saw crossing the tunnel." ...Amanda Rushton '98

Senior Portraits '98

"Here is the Class of '98 at our best. This is just before stepping out into the real world, taking risks we never considered before, meeting people we could never have imagined."

...'98 Rod Day

"I'll always remember how expensive senior year was.I never spent so much in my life. The next thing would be loading my schedule with electives. The third thing would be getting freshmen to believe anything! "Any of you guys want an elevator key?...Don't worry. It's supposed to be cardboard." The fourth thing would be the great Harvest fiasco. It turned out that of the 3000+ students in the school, 400 were juniors who bought tickets, despite the rumors! Lastly, I will remember senioritis. I had a bad case of it ever since last May when the old seniors left!

Senior Life at LHS

It was all about SAT's, college applications, senior dues, class trips, saving for college, visiting schools, privileges, always looking forward to something, Canada, stress, homework, deadlines, English 4, getting away with a lot, going off campus for ULowell classes, ruling the school, writing college essays, treasuring friendships, Harvest, Prom, $, spending hours in Guidance, the Big Kahunas, seniority, easier classes, graduation. ...Class of '98

NINETY EIGHT

A Day in the Life of an LHS Senior

Timeline

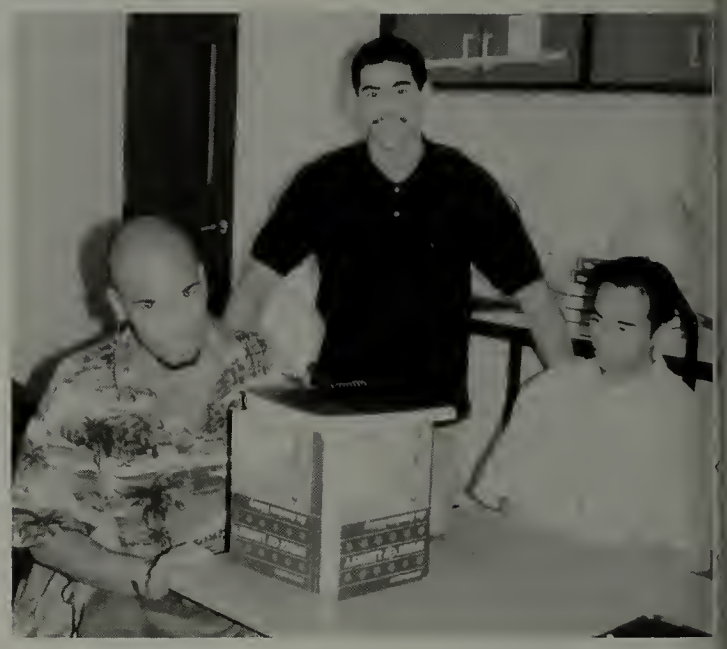

6:30-My boyfriend is my alarm clock in the morning. He calls me to wake me up and to say have a good day in school.
6:35-Get out of bed, wash up, get dressed.
6:50-Have a bowl of cereal, yogurt and juice. Wait for Chrissie, my ride, to arrive.
7:00-Chrissie arrives in the Ford Escort and we head over to Amanda Rushton's to pick her up.
7:10-We arreive at LHS and separate to head to our homerooms.
7:15-Off to my locker to socialize with friends.
7:30-The "tone" sounds and in homeroom I study or finish homework that I didn't have time for the night before.
7:40-Off to mods 1/2 in 517, English with Mrs. Guimond. We usually read literature and take notes.
8:28-Head to the 1st floor of the Old Building with Jen to Psychology. I have the nicest teacher, Mrs. Kiluk.
9:24-Off to my locker to get my gym clothes and head to the weight room.
10:05-Psyiology time! I like this class. I go to the 3rd floor of the New Building to Mr. Chiurri's. I prepare to take a day of notes.
10:54-Physics.This subject is toughest for me. I fight my way through the crowd to get to the top of the old building.
11:24-Algebra with Mrs. McGeowen. This class is pretty interesting. We're working on graphing circles.
12:10-Lunch time. Everyday I sigh and say finally! I'm starving by this time.
1:00-We head to Yearbook Journalism. I have the best table. We always do something interesting.
1:45-Head home. Eat again, watch TV and do homework. I usually get ready for work.
2:45-Off to work at McDonald's in North Tewksbury, the most fun place to work.
8:00-I get to go home. My boyfriend comes over and eats dinner with my family. We also watch T.V.
9:00-Shower time, then I get ready for bed. I do all my homework and studying during this time.
11:00-Nighty-night...after a long day.

Merrimack Valley College Fair

16th Annual College Fair Gave us a Glimpse of the Future

Students from 20 area high schools attended the 16th Annual Merrimack Valley College Fair at LHS to meet with representatives from over 130 colleges and universities. The U.S. Army dazzled us first with free plastic carry bags and then we had a hard time deciding which brochure wa sthe most impressive. Price was outrageous no matter who we asked, ranging from $9,000 for state schools to $30, 000 for private universities, room and board thrown in.

We'd "Be all we could be.." allright, but before that could happen we had to get through our senior year, satisfy all our course requirements, pass the SAT's or TOEFL's, survive the process of applications and recommendations, convince our parents we weren't choosing a college just because it was listed as "the party school of the east,"talk our way though an interview, and then scrape together a financial package that would allow us to have enough money left to buy toothpaste.

YOU CAN GET THERE FROM HERE

Notice our Bridgewater State College and Assumption catalogues...tune in to our tenth reunion to see how it all panned out. The MassPlan loan application was probably the most important piece of literature we could have found.

This is probably the place ...far enough away from home for a bit of independence and reasonably priced enough that my parents won't have to auction the family car. They'll thank me someday.

This was our lucky day...one of the reps thought Heeley's glasses were so cool, he offered him a full boat for four years... or maybe it was that guy in the uniform that promised him adventure and tuition reimbursement?

They hooked us...our future was cast in stone...we figured right there that we would be career students...school was out life...our destiny...all other pleasures would wait while we pursued advanced degrees...or would we?

Homecoming 1997 Style!

The Brainchild of the Pep Club: 1st Annual Homecoming Float Parade

It seemed as though nobody knew about the activities surrounding the First Annual Homecoming Parade. It was something that would have to catch on. But, for those who did take part, the night was one of chaos, excitement and layers of clothes. We picked one of the coldest nights of the year to hold the parade which had us march from the Ayotte Garage, around Lowell High School, up Merrimack Street, and down Arcand Drive to LHS, then into the heat that awaited us in the gym.

So began the shortest pep rally in the history of Lowell High. The band opened the rally with the "Hey Song" to get the kids heated up. The cheerleaders proceeded to do what they did best, giving 100 of their spirit when it was needed most. The slightly smaller than expected attendance didn't keep anyone from having a great time that Ocober 24th evening, when the crowd found the whole purpose of the rally was to announce the winners of the float parade. The seniors won and no one could imagine why! The crowd then filtered to the cafeteria for a super dance where they shed layers of jackets and sweatshirts as the dance heated up and continued through the night.

So ended the first round of Homecoming events spearheaded by teacher Kristin Gregorczyk and her Pep Club activists.

The grand finale would be the crowning of our Homecoming Queen, Lisa Gianis, on October 26th.

Amanda Rushton '98

"The odds were stacked. How could a brightly decorated, rusty old pick-up truck ever possibly defeat the lavishly ornate and high spirited behemoth floats of the underclassmen?"

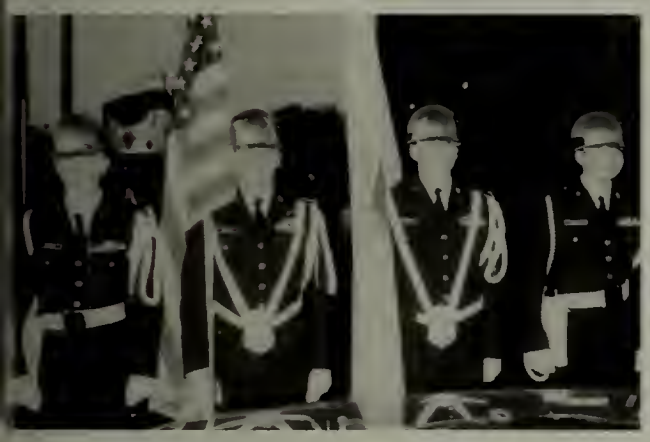

...Chris Hickey '98

"This year's seniors decided to showcase their position as "The Big Kahunas" of Lowell High. To demonstrate this, we transformed my pick-up truck into a paradise of tissue flowers, pineapples, tiki men, hula girls and tropical Hawaiian fish. Topping off the tropical trophy was the very convincing palm tree. The real centerpiece to the float, however, was the Big Kahuna himself, senior Dave Heeley, decked out in a coconut bra and grass skirt, turning in a performance that left many parade goers a bit misty-eyed.

Bringing up the rear of the parade, nobody gave, what came to be known as "the little truck that could," much of a chance. However, the Big Kahunas lived up to their name and their tradition as winners, and made the first-ever Homecoming Parade a scene not to be missed."

The Harvest

November 21, 1997
The Westford Regency Inn

"For juniors it was a step up from the Sophomore Social. For seniors, it was a glimpse of the memories the Prom would bring. And for any sophomores invited as dates, it was an honor to have attended the traditionally upper class event...Some asked why anyone would spend so much money on five measly hours of dancing, sweating, eating and having a blast? Was it worth it? Yes...fresh flowers, special slow dances never to be forgotten, dressing up, never looking better, cameras flashing... The 1997 Harvest, all dreams and expectations, did essentially become reality for most..." Melinda Patterson '99

The Dream and the Reality

"It would be a Harvest to remember for more reasons than one. More than 500 students stood in an endless line during lunch mods to purchase the "rare" 500 tickets. Was it all worth it? Some said yes; some said no. It was to be a night filled with memories for a lifetime. Even with the overcrowded dance floor and skips in the songs, there were echoes of laughter and bad singing throughout the hotel. After searching for a table for some 20 odd friends, it was time to hit the dance floor again...What dance floor? The rug...No one cared. It was all worth the stress of scrambling for tickets and finding a date. When dinner was served it seemed as though some ate and danced at the same time. And so it went until 11:15 when the floor began to clear...." Amanda Rushton '98

"My thoughts on the Harvest were good music, fun people and a better time than last year. They played Reel Big Fish and Devo... "Crowd" was the key word..." Allison Dorsey '98

"The dance itself was all right, but it felt like something was missing. It might have something to do with the fact that of the 500+ people, I knew about 100..." Chris Hickey '98

"It was a bad night. It was too much money... too many kids...not enough food...the music was bad...you couldn't dance without stepping on people's feet... The after-party was the real deal Holyfield, but I can't give out any more information... Joey Cooper '98

I didn't want to spend $30 for a ticket,so I planned to sneak in and save my money. I got caught...
Ben Chaput '98

The one bright spot was my vehicle for the evening. My ncle let me borrow his Dodge Stealth. I looked like James ond rolling into the Westford Regency..." Chris Hickey '98

"I wasn't at the Harvest. My boyfriend didn't want to go because, "he couldn't dance." Instead, I worked from 4-7 p.m. and went out with some friends. I heard the Harvest was good and bad. The good news was they played great music, they had great food, and everyone danced all night. I also heard the opposite..." Cindy Berrios '98

"This Harvest was supposed to be the main event of junior year, but I couldn't believe how worked up everyone got about a simple dance. Some girls were sobbing in the hall when all the tickets were sold out. I couldn't understand why somone would go into hysterics because they couldn't spend a ton of money to get their hair and nails done, then buy an expensive dress they'd wear once. Instead, my boyfriend and I went bowling after going out for dinner..."

Kim Mical '99

"I thought the Harvest was O.K. The selection of music was terrible. I thought the girls looked very nice. The cost of the night was way too high. Why wasn't the Harvest for Lowell High School in Lowell? Why go to Westford?"... Sean Rourke '98

"Getting the golden ticket was no trip to the chocolate factory, as over 500 sold in less than 24 hours. Most didn't care. They were on a mission from God to get on the dance floor!"... Brian Monaghan '98 (last student to purchase a ticket)

"Great music, lots of food, beautiful dates and close friends. This is without doubt the impression you get when you think of the Harvest Dance...a place to get away from all the problems and stresses that come with work and school. One night among friends and classmates, just to unwind and have fun. Sounds great doesn't it? The only problem was that this great night among friends was more of a dream than a reality for me. I had no stories to tell people of whom I danced with, friends I laughed with, or what I was wearing. Instead, I had stories of how much chicken I cooked and how many dishes I washed. I wasn't one of the lucky ones who had the opportunity to dress up and take the night off. Instead, I had to work!"...Eric Cunha '98

"The night rolled out into grandeur as students piled into the Westford Regency. Again, there awaited them another forever-long line. This time students didn't care because they knew that the pictures that awaited them would be precious. As the photo lines diminished, so did the tables and the dance floor...No matter how good or bad a time students said they had at the 1997 Harvest Dance, it seemed to be the most sought-after night for memories and everlasting friendships."...Amanda Rushton '98

A Gastro-experience for Sure.....

Lunch Anyone ?

"Although no one could say they truly enjoyed being crammed with 47 kids around a table which comfortably sat 6, no one could deny the importance of lunch! Whether you spent your 25 minutes copying homework, studying for a test, socializing, or actually eating, it was time well spent! Most of the time the cafe seemed less like a civilized place for eating and more like a zoo where no cages separated the animals. And when lunch ended and the crowds cleared out, what was left behind often resembled a trailer park that had been hit by a tornado! Doesn't say much for us, does it?

.....Eamonn Sullivan '98

"Lunch was always interesting at LHS. We took this time for many different things. The remodeling of the cafeteria gave a new lift to lunch. But, although the cafe was new, our friends and the typical lunchtime conversation hadn't really changed much since freshman year. For most, lunch was a social hour, a time to share, laugh, and complain with friends we didn't see during the day. There was more than one day we used out lunch to cram. "I have to study for next period " and "Do you have the homework for English?" was heard a lot during lunch. Somehow we never learned to stop procrastinating and lunch allowed a time to stress out at the last minute! Somehow we survived!"

...Diliana DeJesus '99

"Even though cafeterias are used most commonly for dining, at Lowell High School it was sometimes used for a boxing ring!"

....Jennifer Moisan '98

ninety eight

"My thoughts of lunch often turn to the ageless lunch ladies at LHS. If you look at old yearbooks, you'll notice that lunch ladies don't age and I guess they don't take too much stock in fashion. Probably aprons and hairnets don't change much over the years. We didn't get to talk to them a lot either, as their side of the conversation was usually, "Hotdog or hamburg?" or "No more fries." Then they'd throw us a curve ball and substitute chips for the missing fries. Sometimes out of the goodness of their hearts they serve Sal's pizza...reheated. So, for those of you who come after me, when you stroll into Lunch Lady Land to the tune of "Brown Eyed Girl" on the AM radio, you too will probably be thinking.... How old ARE these lunch ladies anyway?"

...Brian Monaghan '98

" When we'd get our schedule in August, the first thing we looked at was what lunch mod we had. Lunch was very important at LHS; a precious 25 minutes to stuff our faces, be without a pen or a book, and be with our friends, not to mention getting whatever delightful dish was served that day."

...Billie Jo Rousseau '98

"Lunch at Lowell High was anything but boring. You see, in my case, I had lunch mod 13 which proved to be very unlucky. Having seven classes a day, I had to go through six of them before I had lunch. By 11:00 a.m. my stomach was a barren, empty pit. By mod 11 the sounds it made were mistaken for a small earthquake. Earlier in the year I would hope and pray the snack bar was opened, but for weeks I'd get there and the see the metal gate down. I was reduced to eating hockey puck cheeseburgers and mushy fries. When I got to the ketchup I always had that unpleasant thought that someone had spit in it before I got there just to be mean. Finally, when I reached my overcrowded table, someone always put an elbow in my food. While I survived lunch, it was the one break in the day that I had the chance to socialize with my friends.

....Phil Conners '98

FLASH BACK

The reminiscences of a few speak for so many. High School was a time for growth and change, for dreaming and planning. We never thought we'd miss it!

Sophomore Social

I like to remember the Sophomore Social, back to the times when we didn't worry about all the stress of being a senior. It was actually better than the Harvest I attended as a Junior. All my friends went and we danced until we smelled like sweathogs. We laughed about the sights we observed and discussed the threads some had been wearing. The dance was phenomenal because we put aside our unruly behaviors and attitudes and got along like school children. It's not everyday you can put 400 teenagers in a hall and see to it they all get along. That is when I really started to appreciate my friends.

...Jessica Laffey '98

The Window

One event at Lowell High I can and always will remember is the day they covered the large picture window by the old lockers in the 500 and 600's to begin renovations. I think back to those times of staring out at the defenseless civilians walking by, not knowing anyone was watching. But I was! Those snowy afternoons when I'd look out that window hoping for more. It was where we'd meet, every day after school, so we could plan our afternoon....all gone! The freshmen and sophomores will never know how much those little lockers gave off so much light. They'll never experience uncluttered hallways in the new building because they are now designated locker space. When that window was blocked off, a part of LHS history went with it. The window was loved. It made people happy.

The Band, Finally on its Way

In the early 90's, LHS suffered a great loss. The instrumental program had been wiped out...no more band, orchestra, concert season, nothing. It wasn't until 1994 that a light finally turned on in the band room once again. Students from middle schools, along with a handful of high school students, began to show interest in a revival. To them it was an art and they could not understand its non-existence. Some twenty students formed a band, played their hearts out for fans at LHS football games, and carried on the band program for the next four years. Most people took in stride the responsibility of being a band member and fit that commitment into their already busy schedules. They did it because they loved their art, because they wished to see the program grow before they graduated. It worked! In 1997-98 the LHS band held regular practices, played at every football game, and performed for several audiences during the concert season. On October 31, 1997 the Lowell High Band proudly marched onto Cawley Stadium field in brand new, much needed uniforms. With smiles on their faces, these students performed their field show and displayed talent they had all along. When the last note was sounded, they finally received recognition from peers, teachers, parents and football fans. To the students who began their journey in middle school to graduate to the LHS Band, this was certainly a day to be proud.

Being one of those students in that band of 1994, I saw how the band built itself back up to regain respect from the high school students on that night in 1997. And while the band might not be the most popular activity at LHS, it has all the elements to be one soon. The kids in the band were the greatest thing ever to happen to me. The band taught me and others respect, a skill, and a happiness I had never known before. The students stuck together to assemble over 50 members. So, thanks to all the people who supported the band over the years, to the band members who stuck with it in the worst of times, and to Mrs. Fitzpatrick for drilling it into my head that I had the coordination to march and play at the same time and that high school kids really weren't as scarey as I thought.

Toys for Tots

One event I'll always remember was delivering the toys to the less fortunate children at the Murkland School at Christmas. I'm grateful that I got to experience the feeling of doing something that had such great impact on them and us. When we walked in with Santa bearing gifts, we never knew the appreciation we would receive. One little boy was so happy he went around hugging all of us. After the kids waited patiently in line to see Santa a.k.a Dave Heeley, they tore open their presents with enthusiasm. They jumped for joy as they showed their gifts to their classmates. We made sure everyone was happy with their present, which wasn't hard to do because they were all thrilled. We all went a little further that day doing good for little kids and experiencing the true meaning of Christmas. Leaving the Murkland that morning I think everybody was touched by how happy those children were because of something so simple that we had done.

Billie-Jo Rousseau '98

Organization!

I think what everybody remembers about Lowell High School most are the classes they took, their friends and their teachers. There were always those teachers who gave you tons of notes and homework and the funny thing was, you never though you remembered any of it. One teacher changed my opinion on that. Mr. Boutselis who taught Biology in my junior year. He worked us real hard. He gave notes and homework every day, but for some strange reason it struck in my head. He made the classes interesting, using different methods of teaching. We worked in the book, experimented in labs, and watched science videos. If the class got boring, Tim Flynn and Eric Cunha took care of that. They made us laugh. I learned one important thing in that class. "Organization is the key to success!" You know what? It's true. Without those words, my senior year would have started off in chaos.

Freshman Baseball

One of the best experiences of my high school career was as a member of the 1995 Freshman Baseball team. It was one of the first organizations I joined at Lowell High and definitely one of the most fun.

A few of my friends and I, who had been playing ball together ever since we were little, went out for the team. Most of us made it as we were pretty good ballplayers. To have five or six guys I already knew on the team made me very happy. Nothing could prepare me for the characters I would meet as the season went on..

We had guys from the Highlands, South Lowell, Centralville, Pawtucketville, and of course, Belvedere on the team. It was funny because, up until that point, kids would naturally hang around with people from their respective neighborhoods. After about two weeks of baseball, we found ourselves in a completely different situation. Guys from one neighborhood were hanging around with kids from across the city. Highland boys with Belvedere ones, Centralville with Pawtucketville, and those ruffians from South Lowell falling somewhere in between. The segregated cliques were no more and we found ourselves as one huge freshman juggernaut.

I remember looking at my brother's class two years ahead of mine and wondering, "How did they all get together?" As soon as the baseball season began, the question was answered. What happened was, one guy would meet another, that guy would know another, and so on until everyone knew each other.

If there was one man responsible for this gathering of the masses, it would have to be Coach Kevin Noa. This eccentric, but understanding man brought us together and guided us through our first season of high school baseball. I firmly believe that it was that freshman team that provided the stimulus to many great friendships today. We owe it all to one man...Kevin Noa.

Camp Moosilauke

Probably the worst place to spend on Earth during the last few days of summer is at a hell-camp somewhere in the unpopulated wilderness of New Hampshire. This awful place of which I speak is Camp Moosilauke. It is where the football team goes for pre-season training. From the dreaded day that we arrived to the glorious day when we could finally leave, almost every second spent there was pure torture.

The first omen that would remind you that camp loomed dangerously close in the future would be the terrible nightmares that would awaken you in a cold sweat sometime in early August. You would try to deny the heart-wrenching truth that it wouldn't be long until you headed off to Moosilauke. Time seemed to be your enemy, as the dog days of summer flew by unyieldingly and "camp" drew closer and closer. Before you knew it, you were squeezed into the bus with your bags packed awaiting five days in hell.

Upon arrival, the worst place on Earth seems to be somewhat of a natural paradise with the beautiful surrounding mountains and its gleaming crystal lake. What lay ahead however, would be no nature walk. The days would be filled with blood, bruises and early morning runs. The only time to see the scenery would be as you were making the grueling mile long trek up some mountain back to your cabin after practice.

The cruel Moosilauke gods seemed to possess the power to make five days seem like five years. Each day was a horrible punishment that made you ask yourself what you could have possibly done to deserve such torture. You pray for mercy every free moment you have as you desperately dig deep inside yourself for the strength to carry on. And just as you begin to lose your will to live, it's time to go home.

Getting back on the bus, you wonder if you really are leaving or if it is just some beautifully cruel hallucination. As the bus slowly rolls out and the camp fades away into the background through the rear window of the rescue wagon home, you are beside yourself with the feeling of relief. Arriving back in civilization, you cannot help but feel that it is too good to be true. The next morning you awake with a new appreciation of your comfortable bed. A proud feeling comes over you that you have conquered Moosilauke. You have been to the depths of hell and survived to never speak of it again.

As I look back upon those painfully glorious memories, don't ask me why, but for some strange reason-I miss hell.

"The bleachers are broken..."

Spirit Week was one week out of the year when every day we took time out from one class to participate in an event with a theme. The first Spirit Week I attended at LHS will forever be imprinted in my head. For that week was the start of a racial cold war that no one ever expected. It was "Culture Day" and it all started when some of the students decided to bring in their homeland flag to the festivities. When the Hispanic kids waved their flag and were rooting for their friends from the stands, others kids got angry and started cheering about their heritage. In this case it was Puerto Rico vs. the U.S.

Things started to heat up and before you knew it tensions broke out all week between the "feuding" heritages. By the time Thursday rolled around rumors were flying so fast you didn't know what to expect. One rumor was that there would be a giant rumble outside school at the end of the day. Some police camped outside of school so the "rumble" never happened.

Friday was Red and Grey Day and the event was to be a pep rally. More rumors flew about what would happen in the gym. I guess word got around to Headmaster Samaras and his affiliates because I clearly remember the announcement made over the loudspeaker by Mr. Moorehouse. "The Pep Rally will be canceled today. The bleachers in the gym are broken."

That sent a fury through the school. For the rest of the day the conversation in just about everone's classroom was about the announcement. Everyone was upset that the pep rally was canceled, but things basically died down after that. Now every time something is canceled, everyone knows it's because the "bleachers are broken."

Six and a half hours a day, 15 mods per day, 180 days, 36 weeks...It's academic!

Academics

Bells became "tones" this year, but we knew that it meant hurry to the next class. No let up...no study halls...lunch was the only break! Requirements and electives, GPA's and class rank, credits and report cards. It is said that you remember what impresses you...so, when we think back to our high school years, we'll know right away which of our educational experiences were truly meaningful. Math, history, English, art, science, music, business, foreign language?

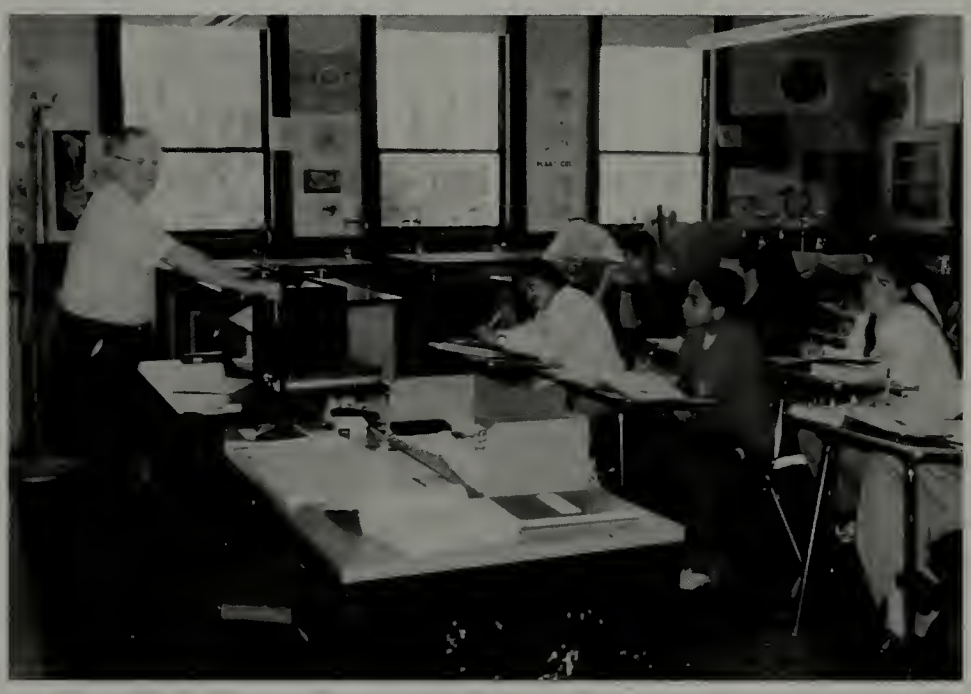

Ninety Eight

Faculty and Administration

Better than a thousand days of diligent study is one day with a great teacher...Japanese proverb

They took on 3,200 hundred students in 114 homerooms, in literally thousands of classes. It was their job to urge us through the learning process, whether we were reluctant, or late, or making excuses, or trying hard and succeeding. We remember some of our most positive experiences in life surrounding our teachers, and some of the most grueling. But the realization of their worth will come in time, with experience and with maturity. We will use the time we spent with our teachers as building blocks, like those we carve from family and friends.

Class of...98

Some more reminiscing from our seniors... and some not so suprising sentiments from the sidelines.

Things we heard over and over again from our teachers...

Where's your homework?
Research report...
What are you doing after high school?
You aren't supposed to wear that.
Take off the hat, please.
Look who decided to show up.
Take out your books and turn to page...
Did you study for this?
Your homework for tonight is...
Where were you yesterday?
Why weren't you in my class?
Get rid of your gum.
Oh, you're in? I just sent a card down on you.
You're in the jug.
Wake up.
This is supposed to be an honors class.
Hmmmmm.
Sit in your seats.
Were you skipping my class?
Do you have a pass?
Pop quiz.
You were not on the absentee list.
You're challenging my authority.
Don't make me write a card on you.
Are you doing something you shouldn't be doing again?
Would you like to see me at 1:45?
No talking.
The bell hasn't rung yet, we still have five more minutes.
We went over this.
Why are you late?
You're going to do an oral report.
Are you related to so and so?
Why don't you have your book with you?
Get your feet off the furniture.
You can do better than that.
Well, if you'd open a book once in a while.
Read this by tomorrow.
Essays are due today.
Take off your coat.
Could you please sit down?
You're seniors, you should know better.
Where are you supposed to be?
Take out your notebooks.
Clear your desks.
No talking.
I'm the teacher, you're the student.
12 absences means an automatic failure.
When you say "Can I go to the bathroom?...they say...I don't know, can you?

Wrestle Mania!

I was in the seventh grade and was a basketball player. One day my dad opened the newspaper and saw Dave McNeil's picture. He was a friend from baseball. In the paper it said Lowell's Dave McNeil would battle Chelmsford's Tim Lewis, both undefeated wrestlers. In that year both Lowell and Chelmsford were undefeated. This was going to be a big night for wrestling. So my dad took me to the gym..the lights were off, loud music came on and Lowell wrestlers came running out of the locker rooms. It looked crazy...seats were sold out and even the fans were getting pumped. I was thinking to my self that I loved the sport and I hadn't even seen the match.The first match was 103, Dave and Timmy. I had no clue what they were doing, how they were scoring, but it looked crazy. The fans went wild. Dave won by a point. I went home and told my dad I wanted to wrestle. Right away he started me up at the Boys Club. I looked up to all the LHS wrestlers who were so cool. I went to LHS and began to wrestle there. As a freshman I was already on the Varsity team. That is when the sport became more real to me. I was wrestling with the big kids now. It was the big time and we were a good team. We came in 4th place at the states that year and had a 18-2 which was great. In any other sport it would have been enough, but not in wrestling. We had a winning tradition. A year went by and we won the states and finished with a 19-1 record. Those years were fun, but I was still the little guy looking up to the seniors. Now that I am a senior I wonder if anyone looks up to me. I call the shots and don't even think twice about making a freshman do something I had to do when I was a freshman. It is weird to think I am in the spotlight now and some freshman might be saying, "Wow, I wish I could be like Joe Cooper...." just like I did with Dave McNeil.

....Joe Cooper '98

Things we heard over and over again from our seniors...

What time does this period end?
Can I go to the bathroom?
What do mean no bonus points?
I don't have any work to do.
Where's the paper?
Does this count for a grade?
Don't card me.
Can we have the blonde sub when you're out?
Do we need our books?
Why do we have to do this?
Can we have a take home test?
After an absence...Did we do anything yesterday?
When are we ever going to use this?
Will this be on the test?
How many more weeks are we in the pool?
Do we have to do work today?
Can I go to my locker to get my homework?
Can we have a study?
What test? (after a week of being told)
Can you repeat that?
This is boring.
We didn't go over this.
I don't know.
Do you have my grades yet?
How many questions are on the test?
Can we have a free period?
Does spelling count?
My printer broke down.
Is it time to go?
Can I get some extra credit work?
Can I get a drink of water?
Is this important?
What did I get on the test?
After a ten minute explanation...How do we do this?
I didn't know we had a test today.
You didn't tell us about that.
Whappage?Whappage?Whappage?
After being absent for days...Do I have anything to make up?
Can I see my grades?
Are we having a final?
I lost my homework.
I've ONLY been absent 10 days.
When they had to work...Are you in a bad mood?
Why can't we chew gum?
I'm tired.
I never heard the announcement... (even though they're never in homeroom on time)
I didn't get the notice.
Can I go to Guidance?
We're allowed 12 absences.
Senior Skip Day... (like it's some legal holiday)
I wasn't here when you told us.

There is nothing so contagious as enthusiasm...

Clubs and Activities

There was something for everyone at Lowell High School. You just had to show up to participate. After school hours found kids all over the building practicing dance, music, chess, theatre, writing for the newspaper, planning community service, working out math problems,discussing issues, holding international holiday parties, or playing intramural sports in the gym. This year saw a new jazz group, a game club, a bigger and better band, and a young women's group.

1998

Student Government at LHS

Leadership, decision making, service and socializing...

In the fall of 1997 the Student Government said good-by to long-time friend and advisor Walter Nelson as he moved on to the position of Athletic Director. Susan Capone Fineman took over as Coordinator of Student Activities. We never looked back as we began to tackle a number of issues and events at LHS. ID badges were reinstituted and students had their own thoughts about that. Renovations were 95% complete, but there were still some facilities that needed the final touches. Computers were rolling into LHS, but not to the long-term benefit of the Class of '98. In other areas, the Harvest Dance was so popular, LHS classes were outgrowing the local hotel ballrooms for demand for tickets. Classes of the future look even larger. Parking competition with the newly opened Tsongas Arena posed a problem for LHS students and visitors, but Student Government spokespersons went right to work on that. The Freshmen demanded and won the first ever Freshman Very Semi-Formal and Spirit Week was planned with our indispensable input. Toy for Tots was a raging success at the Murkland School as we collected over 200 toys for the preschoolers and kindergarteners there. We pitched in to take 8th graders on guided tours of LHS, ran the annual Blood Drive, and collected a room full of food for Hunger and Homeless Week. We opened the door to changes in final exam policies and we studied private concessions for cafeteria food. Our influence on these will only be determined by the future!

National Honor Society 1997-98

Lowell High's Top Scholars Honored in Candlelight Ceremony

It was another proud year for Lowell High School as 83 juniors and 82 seniors were inducted into the National Honor Society. The LHS Chapter is one of 20,000 nationwide which recognizes students with superior grade point averages who demonstrate the qualities of scholarship, character, leadership and service to school and community. Students take part regularly in activities such as Making Strides Against Breast Cancer Walk-a-Thon, and The Easter Seal Basketball Shootout.

Pep Club Boosted Spirit at LHS

Lowell High's Fans Kept the Spirit Alive and Well through '98

The newest activity at LHS, the Pep Club gained wide popularity. Established two years ago, it became a great way to become active in social activities. The group met on Wednesday afternoons with about 30 enrolled members. No official offices were held, but that may come in the future. The group decorates the cafeteria and leads spirit activities in support of our athletic teams. Members of the club paint the signs that hang throughout the halls. The students who take part in this activity say that the club is a lot of fun, but another attraction isthe teacher and advisor Miss "G" (Gregorczyk) She is so helpful, not only with the club, but with our own lives. We like to remember the Homecoming Parade, the first-ever through downtown Lowell with full sized floats on flatbed trucks, the band and the color guard. In addition, the Mr. Football election, Homecoming Queen and toilet papering. The night before Homecoming, the Pep Club members wrap toilet paper all over the place at Varsity player's houses, then we silly string and shaving cream their cars. The real fun was not knowing if the players were home. Most of us got caught and chased, but that was the thrill! ...Jill Lang '99

LHS
SWIMS TO WIN!

GO GET SOME

A.F.J.R.O.T.C.

"To educate and train high school students in citizenship, promote community service, instill responsibility, character and self-discipline, to provide instruction in air and space fundamentals..." This is the mission statement of Lowell High's Air Force Junior Reserves Officer Training Course, ROTC for short. To some, these words represent years of friendship and hard work, and to others they represent a foundation for their future. However, they do represnt one thing common to all cadets: A place where teamwork is a must and respect--the key. ROTC is more than a class. It is real life. It is a place where we put aside our differences and worked together in order to get a job done. From simple tasks like raising the flag and taking it down, to complicated planning like the military ball and the summer leadership program, we use that all important teamwork. We also form many unique friendships, strong enough to last a lifetime.

Performing Arts

With the retirement of Douglas Townshend and the arrival of Andre" Dexotoeax in the 1997-98 school year, the forms, sounds and moves of the Choral Arts Program would be changed forever.

Many members said that their vocals were better and that they were even more eager to win a gold medal. "But, with any new director comes change," said Erin Hadley a senior and veteran of Choral Arts. "And sometimes it is mainly for the best," according to Dave Robbins, a junior. One change was when Mr. D divided the group into two divisions: Varsity and Junior Varsity.

From the boys in "drag" to Jessica Scalese kicking Dave Robbins at the end of "I Will Survive," memories were made that would not be forgotten.

With "Let's go do it for the team!" Fred the Flea, the Mass Hugging Hysteria, wearing silver rings, "Break your right appendix," Lucky Chapstick, "Big Pickle," The Phantom Pee, and running before shows, the group had enough rituals and lucky charms that would certainly be remembered through the years. Also remember: Lowell High gives you credit for remembering your lines and always keeping your cool on stage. With your closing line: "I don't know what I've been told... The Spindles are gonna win the gold!" P.S. I know it was tough Mr. D, but thanks for the info!

International Language Club

The ILC enrolled 700 members this year with an average attendance of 125-200 at every event. Designed to introduce language students to cultures and customs of foreign countries, the group met monthly to participate in: Make Your Own Sundae Party, International Festival in Boston, The Day of the Dead, the Annual ILC Holiday Dinner, the Feast of the Kings, the annual Valentine Carnation fundraiser, Foreign Language Week, Cinco de Mayo, and the end of the year pizza Party.

The most popular event of the year was probably the Valentine Carnation sale which used the solgan, "This Bud's for You!" 3,000 carnations were delivered this year to 114 homerooms from boyfriends, girlfriends and secret admirers.

The annual trip to Quebec Canada for the Winter Carnival was also a hit for some 50 students and their five chaperones from February 6-9th, 1998 . Events included outdoor winter sports, shopping, dinner with French cuisine at Caberet de Champlain, a trip to Montmorency Falls, lunch in Old Quebec, a trip to the Century Inn on the Beaupre Coast, a ferry boat ride on the St. Lawrence River, and a visit to the snow sculptures at the festival. In the spirit of international relations, everyone had a great time and came back with memories for a lifetime.

Science Club and League

The LHS Science Club provided a variety of science activities for its member this year, depending on their interests. Students participated in BU Biotech Labs, monthly Interscholastic Science League competitions, the Science Olympiad, which allowed competition among the top students of some 40 high schools, Science Bowl, Teams Engineering Competition, Science Fair and the Chemistry Exam Competition. 500 students were enrolled as members while subgroups participated in the activities of their choice. In addition to competition, members also enjoyed the Museum of Science field trip, the annual Christmas Party, the Science Bowl, Teacher Appreciation Party and the end of the year party. This year a number of officers served the group: President Tricia Leyland, VP Priti Patel, Secretary Sophear Pang, Treasurer Tejal Patel, and Science League Co-Captains April Gleason, Rathana Yem, James Blair. The Science Club was advised by Chemistry teacher Athena Letsou, a veteran advisor to the club for 14 years!

"The opportunity for intellectual and personal growth within the Science Olympiad is immeasurable!"
...James Blair '98

"From 'Bugme' to 'Fermi' questions, the LHS Science League opened my eyes to new frontiers in science. Each week the League gathered to plan strategies and lay out blueprints for our monthly meets. There were three events at each meet. It could be anything from a "bungy egg drop" to "physics band." Through the League, I learned to work with others in problem solving situations. I also learned from competitors at the meet. The LHS Science League was an excellent opportunity toput practical knowledge to use in "real-life" problems and to benefit from others' knowledge and learn.

Each fall the BU Biotech Club offere a program where MA high school students travelled to BU laboratories to learn various aspects of Biotechnology and Biotech Engineering. In my first year I worked with recombinant DNA, conducted two science fair projects there, DNAsuars Phase I & II wher I used my knowledge to develop a procedure where researchers could insert segments of prehistoric DVA into spliced genes to figure out the base pairs in the unknown genomes. While my expreiment had many flaws, I learned a great deal about genetics from BU.

The New England Regional Science Bowl was an all-day competition where teams of four students from high schools aorund New England participated in a sort of "quiz show." Our team came in 4th out of 80-100 teams!

The JETS-TEAMS Engineering competition was held at UMass Lowell with in two parts. The first was a multiple choice question, whil;e the second was a free response section. The questions could range from trying to develop the next Olympic style bicycle to developing a space station. It was one of the most difficult competitions I have ever participated in.

I got involved in the Science League because of my love for science and because the competitions allowed me to apply everything I was learning in school to practical problems in life."

Game Club

"The club with the most meetings..." people couldn't believe how often members of the Game Club were found after school still playing board games at 4:30 in the afternoon. Winters found darkness descending upon a quiet group of 12-20 students on any good game day. The goal of the club was to open the eyes of students and teachers to the world of Collectable Card Games, CCG's, role-playing games, RPG's and science fiction and other board games. The population of LHS found out there were things in life besides sports and in addition to sports, and the cafeteria and Room 418 became control central for card-playing enthusiasts. Officers for 1997-98 included: President Dan Lussier, Vice-President Andy Stokinger, Ruleskeeper, James Blair, and Secretary Evan Tannheimer. Games played included: Magic:The Gathering, Battletech, Netrunner, Star Wars, Star Trek, Legend of the Five Rings, Middle Earth, Dungeaons and Dragons, Vampire, The Masquerade, Roborally. Rules: No betting was ever allowed on any game played. no games of vulgar content were allowed, and all handbook rules applied except for the banning of "card" playing. It had to be. Most games were played with cards of some sort, but not the classic 52!

MIND OVER matter

Chess Society

According to newly appointed Chess advisor Jim Clements, "The purpose of the Chess Society is to promote the game of Chess that has been played in intellectual circles for hundreds of years." And so the group met every Monday afternoon in the Little Theatre to match the best of LHS's analytical minds.

Senior and perennial player James Blair summed it up this way. "I got involved in the Chess Society because my interests lean toward strategy, strategic card games, chess and even some strategic computer games. This club is dedicated to strategy in its purest form. Here you can meet and learn from other people, get the chance to practice one of the most ancient board games, and sharpen your ability to learn from your mistakes and the mistakes of others."

Some thirty students met on a regular basis to play the game, plan the yearly human chess match and fund-raising dance, and to enter scholastic chess tournaments sponsored by the Massachusetts Chess Association.

1997-98 Officers: President Paul Do, Vice-President Evan Tannheimer, Secretary Karam Saab, Treasurer Andeth Mann, Rules Keepers James Blair and Ben Lu.

LHS Newspaper, The Review

It was a tough year for the school newspaper, but one that would find underclassmen looking to the future with hope. A skeleton crew of dedicated scholastic journalists took on the task of compiling a school newspaper with no computer, no newspaper publishing program on site, and no newspaper journalism class. Things promised to look up in '99 as computers began to roll into Lowell High and the Newspaper Journalism class was reinstated for the 1998-99 school year.

Getting kids to write for the newspaper was a hard sell, but the crew managed to get one edition out by December with another rolling out sometime in March. LHS students hadn't caught on that the newspaper was their vehicle, a forum for launching serious debates on school issues and timely topics. It served as a springboard for humor columnists, creative writers and artists with no commitment other than the interest and the submission itself. The staff was always willing to do the rest. Articles this year included stories on renovations and their impact on student life, the "no coats" rule that went into effect, movie and video reviews, and a full expose of what freshmen though about being at LHS. Also included were articles which sought to lend understanding to the role of the Rainbow Connection at LHS. Mocha Java printed the creative writing of many LHS students and featured artwork and photos by others. The newspaper was advised for the second year by Ann Bienvenue, with co-editors Mikhaela Reid, Brandy Grondine and Dan Simmons.

THE Write Stuff

Yearbook, The Spindle

What began as a class of 19 yearbook journalism students eager to contribute to the production of the 1998 Spindle ballooned into a "seminar" of 30; 19 yearbook enthusiasts, 10 filling a schedule, and one out of stater who had yearbook experience. With such a mix it was sure to be an interesting job to compile the 1998 memories, stories and photos of a graduating class of some 569 seniors. With computerized layout and design and no computers, we were faced with the first complication. Deadlines for portrait photos?... "Oh, don't I have until June?" Blue senior information sheets? "I never received one in homeroom."(even though 550 other seniors had!) Baby pictures?... "Uh, can I use this one with my older brother in it?"...Where are the names for the team photos?... "Gee, the coach must still have it. I'll get it someday." Captions?... "Don't you know a picture is worth a thousand words?" Due dates for assignments?... "But I've been absent for four days."... "Why can't I wear a baseball hat in my portrait? That's the real me!"... "Where are the photo stickers?" "We have no pictures of the Review staff!" "The Swim Team photo hasn't arrived!" "We don't know these kids!" "Deadline???" "That team never passed in their memories."...And so it went. At times you might think the job would never be accomplished. But it was, and here is the proof of the hard work of a dedicated few. Cheers to all the contributors who spent countless hours during class and after school in the production of the 1998 Spindle! With this edition, I sadly say good-by to advising the yearbook. Enjoy it for years to come!

Top Ten Reasons People are in Band

...by members of the band!

10. The cool songs we play (yeah right!).
9. We did it for Fred, the Dunkin' Donuts guy.
8. It's free even with public humiliation.
7. Community bathroom.
6. Back of the bus strip shows were always an option.
5. Group activities on top of the parking garage.
4. Beating heads with mallets is perfectly legal.
3. Free super hero costumes.
2. New Bedford bus rides (enough said!).
1. Where else can people play with each others' instruments freely?

CLASS OF 1998

It was a year of new beginnings for the Color Guard. A new coach, new equipment, and new uniforms came our way. We actually looked like a Color Guard! Gone were the windpants and jackets and in were the flashy dresses with their own matching silks and streamers, not to mention the scrunchies. Along with looking good came feeling and acting good. We came a long way from the angles and slams of previous years. We found it was possible to do figure eights while moving and actually catching an ariel on the field. We could even be Super(wo)man. It was a year of hard work and frustrations but it was also a year of friendship and smiles.

Cramming for a routine minutes before we were to perform made us realize one important thing: No matter what happened we could always count on each other. Through the good and bad, we kept our bubble alive, never allowing anyone to burst it. We learned that nothing was impossible with hard wok and determination (as long as you remember your black socks).

Mock Trial

"Objection, Your Honor..." This was heard often as Lowell High's Mock Trial team defended their side in the case at hand. This was a team effort where listening and thinking on your feet could either make it or break it. Attempting to prove your case before an actual judge was nerve-racking, but hours of preparation and practice made it easier for the team. Our competitiors included Lowell Middlesex Academy, Central Catholic, and Haverhill High. All of the hard work and determination paid off as the LHS Mock Trial Team of 1997 came in second place at the National Competitions held in San Francisco. One member, John Sheehan, received the "Best Witness Award."This year the team prepared for the Nationals in Maryland.

The mission of Mock Trial was to further understand the law, court procedures and our legal system, to help in public speaking skills, reasoning, writing and critical thinking, and to heighten appreciation for academic studies as well as career consciousness for law-related professions.

The skills and friendships we found in the group will last a lifetime. It seemed there wasn't anything the team couldn't handle, even the last-minute withdrawal of a key witness in our case in State Competition, trolley rides at 1:00 a.m. to the Virginia girls, and talking football in Muir Woods.

We extend sincere thanks to our Mock Trial Coaches, Mrs. Roxane Howe and Attorneys Frank and Patricia Talty.

Top Ten Memories in Mock Trial

10. Nationals Cardinal Rule! It;s good to lie!
9. "The Picture."
8. "Wicked." It's a New England thing.
7. Grandma Jess.
6. Judge Wirtanen.
5. Bananas don't fly.
4. Is this in your affadavit... Impeachment?
3. I did not swear at the judge!
2. Wantons.
1. "There's a girl with chains at the door."

GSA Rainbow Connection

Sensitivity, maturity and an open mind were the components necessary to become a member of the GSA, Lowell High's chapter of the Gay-Straight Alliance. While it wasn't written that these were the ingredients for a successful club they were the qualities of every member.

The Rainbow Connection sought to provide a safe and compassionate ear to students who practiced alternative sexuality and those who were simply their friends.

Massachusetts was one of two states who led the nation in legislation making it illegal to discriminate against people because of their sexual orientation, and Lowell High led the way in providing the opportunity for intelligent forums on the subject.

Under the advisorship of Health teacher Janet Dendy, the LHS GSA brought together students past and present and their friends for seminars on gay and lesbian issues. Students learned how to fend off remarks and attitudes from students and adults alike and heard from members of the gay community, their family members, their siblings and their supporters from many fields. Students learned about their self-worth, their bright futures, and their ability to bring about change. This year, students of the GSA took brave steps to publish articles in the school newspaper, The Review, which quoted important statistics, spoke clearly about dissolving stereotypes, and called for action on the part of all LHS students to erase homophobia from our halls. This was the most courageous of all Lowell High student activities.

"Every one of us is unique...every one of us is different. Learn to accept those differences."

Math League

"The Math Club at LHS has two main functions: 1.To participate in math competitions through the Massachusetts Math League, the New England Math League and the American High School Mathematics Examination, and 2. To offer math tutoring as a service to all LHS students after school,"said club advisor Sharyn Walczewski. But, Chuang "Eric" Huang added a lot to that. "My love for math and helping people greatly influenced my getting involved with Math Club and League. I am also very fascinated with the language of math. It is so universal. If all other languages fail, you can always communicate with math. Participating in Math League helps to show others how great LHS is. The lessons you learn like teamwork and pride in your school are some of the best aspects of this activity."

Lowell High traveled to a local high school once a month for competition as members of the MML in Division IV with seven other area schools. In the fall, members also attended the Math Invitational at Worcester Polytechnic Institute and UMass Lowell. Senior Chris DaCunha won a $1,000 scholarship at the WPI competition.

Fifty students rounded out the 1997-98 Math Club & League roster.

Peer Leadership

Judging from the hefty schedule of any Peer Leader, "spare time" was not someting they had much of! The purpose of the Peer Leadership Program is to build self-esteem by helping students identify the needs of their school and their community and to help them meet those needs. Students went out into the city to build bridges between the school, the elderly, the needy, and the D.A.R.E. Program. This year members took part in a list of activities: Sexual Harassment training for freshmen and the Arts Magnet School, bell ringing for the Salvation Army, Christmas caroling in local nursing homes, working with DARE and assist as mentors for Lowell's youth in Project Kids, volunteering at soup kitchens (YMCA), learning more about City Corps and other volunteer organizations in Lowell, Walk-a-thons; DARE and March of Dimes, providing support materials for House of Hope, and many projects on-going.

"I got involved in Peer Leadership because I had a few friends who were always telling me how much fun they had with the program. It has helped me in many aspects of my life, learning a lot about myself and my school," said Stasha Fyfe, '98.

Abby Lantagne, '99 said she chose Peer Leadership because she enjoyed getting familiar with her community and helping people and organizations who need help. An active S.A.D.D. Chapter is one of her goals.

"The best aspect of Peer Leadership is that in any activity I have volunteered for, I have always had fun. I felt good about myself after helping others and being a leader. I also know that we, as a group, are paving the way for future peer leaders, so I am looked up to as a role model," added Emily Byrne.

This year Deborah Mousley took over as advisor and had many visions for the future: coordinating dances, coffee houses, speakers on timely topics such as drugs, date-rape, eating disorders, depression and coping with stress. She also thanks Healthy Life Skills and DARE.

Drill Team

"Drill team, fall in." The command was heard every Tuesday and Thursday as ROTC Drill Team members prepared for practice. Four teams made up the whole Drill Team; females with weapons, four-man, co-ed with weapons, and co-ed without weapons. To them, Drill Team was more than an after-school activity. It was a strenuous and complicated sport, involving not only the physical aspect of drilling and handling rifles, but also the critical aspect of coordinating the drill movements and the equipment work that made up the routine. The teams got together and worked for hours to perfect each routine. The results: 5-7 minutes competing on the drill floor. The hard work paid off for the female team, as they won the New England Championships two years running. The four-man team won first place with a routine they worked on minutes before getting onto the floor. The teams stuck together through good and bad. "We were all like sisters," said the females on the team. They laughed, cried, and screamed with joy and frustration; but, they did it together. The bonds formed these years would never be forgotten by those who were part of the Class of '98 and by those who would remain.

MORE Than You'd Expect

Jazz Club

"The Fitz Dimension" was named affectionately after our volunteer Jazz Club advisor Pat Fitzpatrick. During the 97-98 season, Linda Bowden served as President, Megan Follett served as President-elect and Kristen Bovill as Secretary. The club was activated to expand the musical experiences of the instrumental students including improvisation. Fifteen students took part regularly to perform at parades, in and out of school concerts and any time the crew could get together.

... "During my junior year, the Jazz Club was in an experimental stage. We were just getting out of the practice room and into the spotlight. We performed at the Nesmith House and in the Apple Blossom Parade in Westford. We also had a chance to showcase our talents in the Christmas and Spring shows and for the junior highs. I got involved because of my love for the clarinet. This was a chance to express my passion for music while meeting people with the same interest. The best aspects of this activity for me was being able to share music with people who may not have been exposed to jazz."

Distributive Education Clubs of America

DECA was designed to enhance the cocurricular education of students interested in marketing, management and entrepreneurship, and that's exactly what LHS students experienced this and every year as members. Students developed skills and competence for marketing careers, built on their self-esteem, experienced leadership, traveled, and practiced community service.

Competitive events made up another phase of the DECA program for students. The events were based on the occupational goals of each student and were offered by National DECA as well as state, provincial or chapter level. Andrew Ste. Marie summed it all up this way. "Since joining DECA, I have attended the NARCON (North Atlantic Regional Conference) '96 in Washington and '97 in Toronto, went on an exchange program to the Republic of Georgia (Russia!) and placed 4th at states in Food Marketing. I loved meeting new people, and by joining DECA I was able to meet students from the 50 states and Canada and I traveled to different states and countries that I otherwise would not have had the opportunity to visit. It was memorable fun and I made important contacts for my future career.

Barbara Rocha added, "It's not often that you get to write a 30-50 page paper and enjoy it because by the time you get to the competitions, the work is mostly done! And with this, we really got involved in careers in the real world, learning a lot about business by meeting many successsful people. We learned communication skills that will help when we're out of college and out interviewing."

Allyson Gauthier said, "What made me enter the program was Mr. Mamalis' presentation. He said the program was for people who were interested in business or people who had no idea what they wanted to do after graduation. I knew that was me so I joined DECA and it's both a great class and a great club!"

Tim Bugler spoke of the travel. "I have been to two NARCON conferences in Washington D.C. and Toronto, Canada, district competitions here in Lowell, State competitions at Cape Cod (Falmouth). At districts I competed in Food Marketing and came in 4th place."

Thank you Mr. Mamalis!

Fall & Winter Sports

Everyone who participated in sports at Lowell High was a winner: character, strength, and perseverence came to us as life-long benefits. Anyone who felt the rigors of practice, the joy of winning and the pain of defeat shared teamsmanship,friendship,and fun. We learned to juggle time, commitment, and responsibility for others, and we are all better persons for it. Thanks to our coaches and sponsors for being there to help us and thanks for all the memories of great competition.

LHS Cheerleaders

And now for our feature presentation..

The 1997-98 LHS Cheerleaders enjoyed another successful year. The nineteen members were led by Captain Nora Marchand and Co-Captain Chon Chao. The season began at BU NCA Camp in August. The football season went by quickly and basketball season began with practices focusing on competition routines. Half-time routines included various cheers or the mini-routine. The competitions: Best Cheer for Crowd Participation and 2nd place at Shepherd Hill on the the heels of Chicopee. "Dominated...." describes the First Annual MVC Tourney win! Back to back was sweet as we placed first at Bartlett again and won Best Stunts Jumps and Gymnastics. New rules brought us to Salem for Division I Regionals in which we were finalists. This set us up for the State Championship on our turf. What great pride and enthusiasm as we showcased our school and ability... one point... State Finalist... second to Medford. 1st to our coaches and the crowd. At press time we prepared to have fun and compete at the NCA Spring Classic in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina.

Memories: "Raise the Roof," first place at Bartlett, Kim's roll, sexy legs (Andover) "Smile" for your buddy, freshman year tryouts, dancing on highway, BK playplace, Mel's lack of sleep (yawn), "V.P." Vanessa's yellow horn, "Save it for the bus." pancakes before competition, U-Lowell competition, "Hey girls, where's the bus?" Mel's granny skirt, The Float, Chon's power ranger, trunk riding at camp, Bridgette's poofy hair skit, Jill's banana at camp, getting hit by the drum major at Haverhill, Friendly's, Kelly, we miss you, Is everyone here for practice?, Good Stuff! Kicking the wall at camp, finally getting a back tuck, opening stunt with Beth every year, split leaps, spilled juice on my shirt all day football games / basketball games, Ain't seen nothing yet! Higher...Higher...How bad do you want it? We want it all...Take it! And now for our feature presentation, Having the best float for the parade but it blew off on Douglas Road! The LHS tee-pee, Melanie always yawning, Chon can you see this? Nora Best Cheerleader Competition, Zoot suits, Sparkle 'n Shine!

With only one win, it wasn't a season of victory on the scoreboard. But, together as a "small" team, we gave it our all and came out with some thing more; a lifetime of friendships and memories, a sense of self and team accomplishment, and a desire to learn and be-come a "stronger team" in years to come.

We were truly "champions" even though the scorebooks said otherwise. The 1997-98 Cross Country season will always hold specials memories for all of us. We tried our best, became really close and learned about teamwork.

Memories: "What did I tell you?", "Where's Patty?" Kathy anchor at Tewksbury relays, "Wow, look at her hair!", 3 weekends of rain, high wave, Where are they? Christina, this is a dirt road, Old Witch Bonnie, pond at Shedd, NDA, what a flirt, summer lovin', getting lost in the cemetery, Christina's white tee shirt becoming a target for a bird, MB falling & getting attacked by a dog all in one day, Patty's bright orange tank in Chelmsford, "a ring on my finger," PB, tan hat boy, squished all in one car, backyards and streams.....

Cross Country Team 1997-98 Captains: Melissa Bergeron and Heather She with Coach Kathy Vail.

"Our unsung hero would be Sousavanh...she was a true team player...she was always there to cheer everyone on...she only had a positive attitude."

"The best part of our season was our win over NDA."
" The hardest part of our season was having such a small team with two of our girls injured most of the season. If everyone had been there to run, maybe we would have won a few more meets."

Captains: Jeff Cimon, Brian Duffey, Mark Ryan.
Coach: Phil Maia
In brief, we had fun, despite a tough loss to Chelmsford. The year was very successful, but the season taught us not to be discouraged by an early setback. Hard work and dedication contributed to our wins; injuries to our loss.
The most rewarding aspect of the season was that it was Coach Maia's 100th win and making States.

When we were asked about Coach Maia's impact on our team, we immediately thought about how he molded us from a band of social deviants into a group of merciless killing machines...but, this is Cross Country Track after all; we're really soft-hearted, skinny little guys. Standouts for this year included: Jeff Cimon, Mark Ryan, Matt Theodoros, Julio Otero, and Brian Duffey. The unsung hero was Ben Chaput.

2 Wins 6 Losses

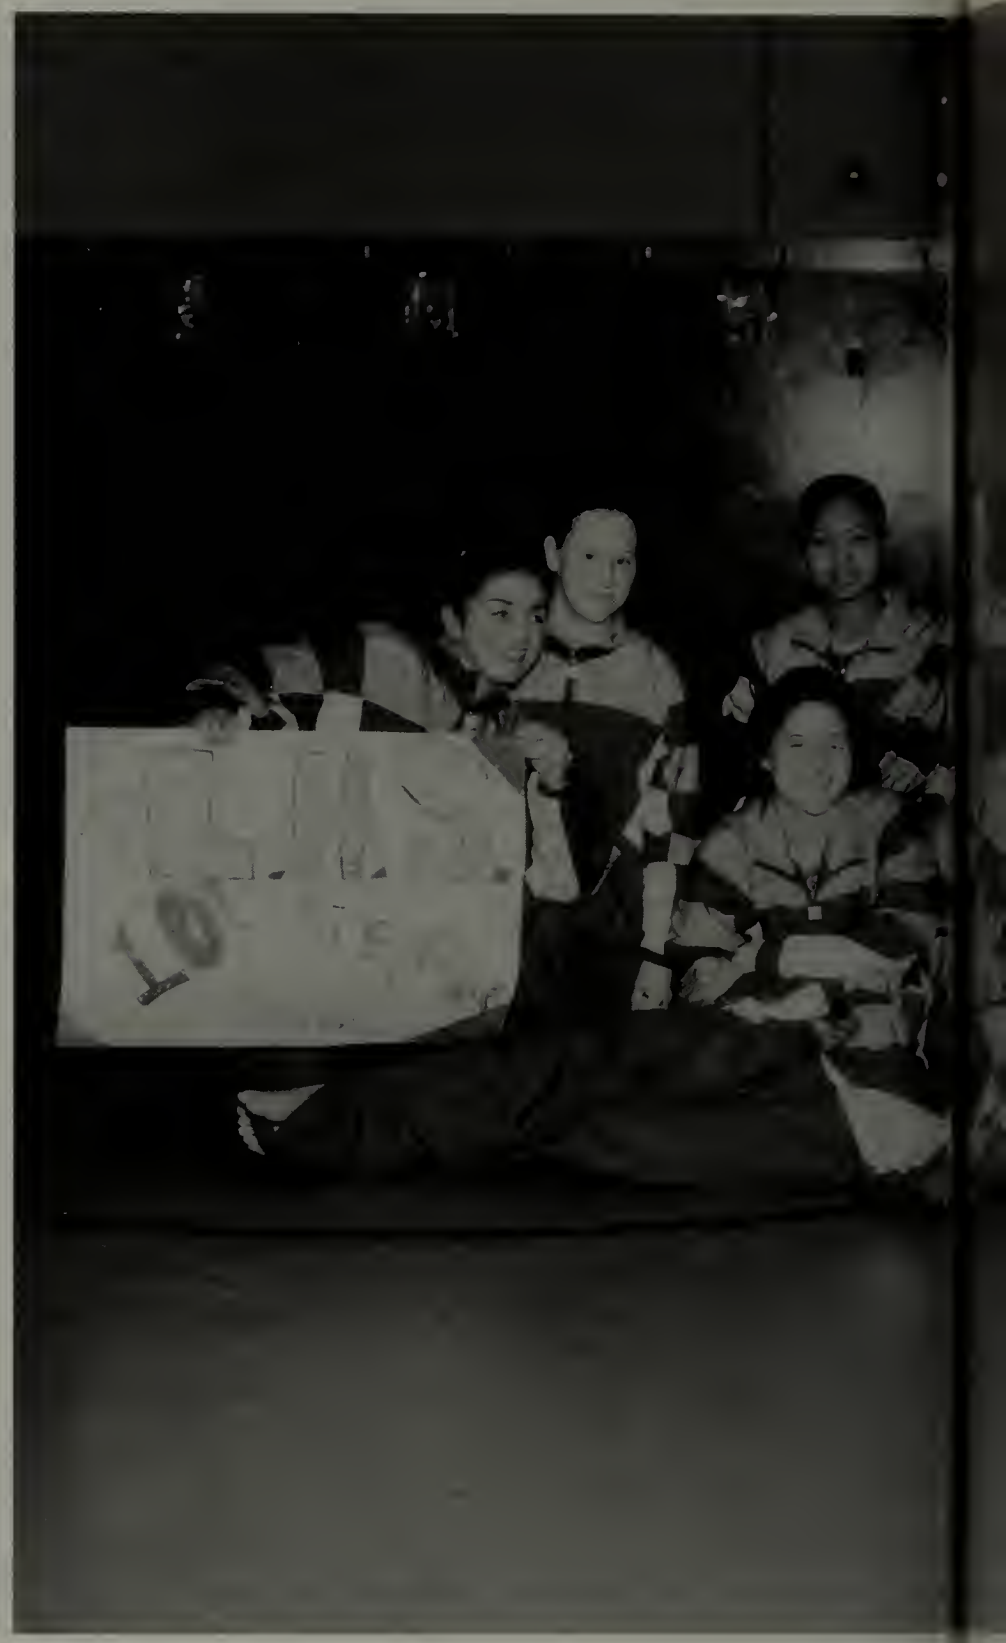

The Captains: Tracy Cote, Colleen Dolan, Linda Bowden.
The Coaches: Reginald Walker, Sr. and Erica Douglas.

With a record of 2 and 6, the girls had a tough rebuilding season. Coming into a new season with 2 key losses prepared them for a tough winter. The team's confidence and spirit pulled them to victory while intimidation contributed to most of the losses. The girls showed hard work, commitment and dedication. They learned to compete under some tremendous pressure and how to deal with nerves. Coach Walker and Coach Douglas gave support throughout the season and boosted self-esteem among the girls. This year's standouts included Beth MacLaughlan and Chankressna Khirv, Khirv being the high scorer for this year's team.

LHS Returns to the State Tournament
First Time in Fifteen Years!

The Captains: Dan Tobin, Mike Stuart.

The Coaches: Bill "Beaver" Robinson, Bill Robinson, Jr., Phil Comeau.

The 1997-98 Red Raider Hockey Team led by Captains Dan Tobin, Mike Stuart and seniors Scott Merrill and Barry Holbrook, capped off a convincing 10-10 season with their first trip to the State Tournament in 15 years. In prior seasons the LHS hockey program suffered greatly and was lacking support. "Last season was a tough year and nobody really paid any attention to us. But, this year we showed what we could do and got the attention we deserved. Next season will be very productive," said junior defenseman Billy Lynch.

This season the focus changed from just winning to making the State Tournament. The team accomplished that feat and more. It was a great year for the team and for Lowell High School as well.

Their victories were focused on solid defense and constant offense. Losses were atributed to the fact that at times they didn't play like a team, but more as individuals.

Coaching the team to its first play-off berth in 15 years. Coach Bill "Beaver" Robinson was the guy who really motivated his players to do what needed to be done. He loved his job and devoted much of his time doing it. Standouts included Senior goalie Scott Merrill who turned it up a notch at the end of the season and Junior center Dan Tobin who, as usual, was an offensive threat at all times.

The team's roster loaded with underclassmen, signified a dramatic turnaround in participation. We'll watch the future to see if this is a Red Raider return to glory!

The Coaches: Jim McGuirk, MaryBeth McKenney, Lauren Andriolo.

Running track is never easy whether you're a distance runner, shot putter, or sprinter. It takes a lot of hard work, commitment, dedication and team work. Our 1997-98 Indoor Track Team experienced that and more.

Through hours of practice there were always three incredible coaches who were there for us every minute, watching and supporting their team through good times and bad. From individual bests of seven graduating seniors and teammates, to the new school record holders Ashley Cole (frosh 50 hurdles) and Ana Kincaid (school 50 yard dash) it was truly "a season to remember." Everyone was a hero on this team.

"This was a season to remember. A good way to end our senior year!

We felt that as a team we accomplished a great deal considering we were off and on with injuries...The most important lesson learned this season was that if you believe you can win, and focus on that, it will happen...Our victories were won with hard work and perseverence: our losses from overconfidence and injuries. The most difficult aspect of the season was losing 1-0 against Lexington at States...The most rewarding aspect of our season was that we all got along so well and that helped us to play as a team...Our coach supplied a great deal of confidence and positive attitude...Meghan Maloney stood out at sweeper after changing her normal position... Katherine Kennedy, a freshman, stood out at stopper.

The Captains: Liz Dubuque, Michaela Merrill, Meghan Maloney, Lisa Gianis, Ena Daniel.
The Coaches: Mike Crowley, Scott Boyle.
The 1998 Girls' Basketball Team ended the season with what they felt was a good overall record. They learned that they were happy with the outcome knowing they gave 100%. The victories and losses were a reflection of the team's atitude, their coaches, and the team's hard work. While the loss to Methuen was difficult, they made up for that by qualifying for the State Tournament in large school division, then by beating Chelmsford on their home court! Ena Daniel was a remarkable standout on the team becoming the highest scorer in the league. She also tied the LHS school record for most points scored in a single game. A tough break with a huge impact was Liz Dubuque's concussion keeping her out of play for five crucial games.

We Thank Greater-Lowell Community Members for Their Supporting Roles

Advertisers and Sponsors

Our silent supporters included members of business, education, politics, public service, and families. They were out there and they proved it with generous donations to the 1998 yearbook. Because of them, our yearbook is complete. We will be the leaders of tomorrow and they will know it by our buying power and our involvement in our communities. We will prove to them that their confidence in us was well-founded. In the meantime...thanks to all.
